APRIL FOOL'S DAY FACTS

April Fools' Day, celebrated on the first of April in many countries, is known for the fun tradition of playing practical jokes, like pretending someone's shoelaces are untied or sending them on silly "fool's errands." Although this day has been celebrated for centuries, its true beginnings are unclear and might never be fully known. The celebration is somewhat similar to ancient festivals such as the Roman festival of Hilaria and Indian Holi festival which occurred near the end of March.

Some people think that the modern idea of April Fools' Day started in France after an edict was issued by King Charles IX in August 1564. This decree changed the new year celebration from Easter to January 1, and those who kept celebrating on Easter were teased and called "April Fools." Others believe the day's name refers to the changeable weather at this time of year which can "fool" people.

Different countries have their own ways of celebrating April Fools' Day, but it always gives people a reason to enjoy playful pranks. In France, for example, someone who is tricked is called a poisson d'avril, which means "April fish" and likely refers to a young fish that's easy to catch. French children often tape paper fish on the backs of their friends without them noticing. Many media outlets around the world also join in the fun by publishing fake news stories or headlines just for the day.
