The History of Conversation Hearts

It all started in the 1840s when a Boston pharmacist named Oliver Chase invented a machine that made it easier to create apothecary lozenges. Chase's lozenge cutter is credited as the first American candy machine. He started off making medicinal lozenges for sore throats and bad breath, but later turned to creating candy.

February Quotes

"Every moment is a fresh beginning." ~ T.S. Eliot

"When you focus on being a blessing, God makes sure that you are always blessed in abundance."

~ Joel Osteen

"Without Valentine's Day, February, would be, well, January. ~ Jim Gaffigan

February Symbols

Birthstone: Amethyst

Flower: Violet

Colors: Purple, Light Blue, Yellow, and Pink

Zodiac Sign: Aquarius until Feb. 18 and then Pisces Feb. 19 and forward.

These candy lozenges would go on to become the Necco Wafers that are still around today.

Soon after inventing the wafers, Chase teamed up with his brother, Silas Edwin, to create Chase and Company, which then became the New England Confectionary Company, or NECCO. Necco Wafers' popularity took off during the Civil War and continued to be a popular candy for decades. Because they were portable and wouldn't melt, they were often shipped overseas.

Legend has it the idea for conversation hearts came from people sending love letters to the troops during the Civil War. Since they were already carrying Necco Wafers, why not press the love messages directly into the candy? Back then, the candies came in all different shapes, like baseballs, horseshoes, and watches, and they featured much longer sayings. Hearts weren't added to the lineup until 1901.
